MANTELLASSI COMPAGNIA TESSILE

Regenerated wool is obtained from the reuse of old garments, through mechanical processes, without the use of chemicals, and it can be recovered to the original raw material stage, preserving its outstanding characteristics. In the first step used clothes are collected and divided according to compositions, colors and micronage of the wools. After this first selection, the garments are subjected to a process of shredding and to various successive processes, which lead them back to the state of raw material. From the fiber begins a new natural cycle of processing that includes spinning, weaving and finishing with the most advanced techniques to give richness to the textile. "Recycle is luxury" is one of our beliefs: it's fashionable in designs and colors, meets all chemical requirements, it's ecofriendly. Regenerated wool is based on circular economy allowing to save water, the release of CO2 in the atmosphere and energy saving. Manteco strongly believes in it, and thanks to its commitment has recently received the Radicalgreen Award at the presence of the Italian Prime Minister. Bring back to life old fabric is our priority.
